

Magic .

May 1, 2007 - May 19, 2025

From Jordan: It's so hard to say goodbye to your best friend. Magic had been my loyal companion for a little over a few years, but we had to let him go last Monday as his health had deteriorated and his quality of life was not good. It was one of the hardest things I had ever done. I'm so grateful for our time together. Magic wasn't a big lap cat, but when I would get in bed he would stand on my stomach/chest and eventually lie down on me. I'd pet him and if I was lucky he would rub his head against the bottom of my chin. When we would do this I would frequently tell him, "These are our moments." Magic meant so much to so many including the family that had him before me. A friend of mine said, "What a lucky soul to be so loved, " but to me we were the lucky ones. There is a really big void and at times I feel really empty inside, but I know that although Magic is physically gone, he will live on in our hearts.
